Birds might not resonate so deeply in your day to day thoughts, but for numerous bird watchers, musicologists and researchers out there, they're a deep inspiration. Seven artists explore the ways birds fascinate us through various forms of media, from mimicking birdsong through feedback loops to replicating bird wings mechanically to study their flight movements to studying the ways humans preserve and catalog birds. In any case, prepare to rethink your perception of these winged animals and how our own technological footprints impact and risk their existence.
